

Title: Communicating Science in the 21st Century

Date: Oct 24, 2009 08:00 PM

URL: <http://pirsa.org/09100071>

Abstract: Science journalism is the essential glue connecting science to society. Looking around the world, how is science journalism changing? Is science journalism even essential to good science communication? How else might scientists come to understand the relationship between new technologies and the products of research and the public who will ultimately use them?

